

REES makes Senior Living Presentation at Environments for Aging Conference

REES makes Senior Living Presentation at Environments for Aging Conference. As a professional serving the long-term living community and a champion for the improvement of well-being for the aging population, I am honored to serve as a key speaker at the Environments for Aging Conference, March 29 - 31, 2009 in Boston, MA.

This exclusive conference is a comprehensive three-day experience, bringing together architects, owners, developers, facilities managers, design professionals, product manufacturers, and government officials to explore and share new ideas for creating attractive and functional living environments that meet the unique needs of our aging population.

Please find below a special preview of the topics presented at this one-of-a-kind event. The topics that I will be discussing are:

Session E-23 - Can We Talk?.....Facility Managers Speak Out!

Session E-16 - Finding Your Way Home – Integrating Graphics and Wayfinding in Senior Environments

I look forward to your attendance at and participation in the Environments for Aging Conference. Your presence will surely benefit our collaborative efforts in shaping a future that effectively supports individuals as they age. For additional information, please visit: <http://www.efa09.com>

Sincerely,

Beverly Brandon, AIA, CASP, LEED AP

Vice President

p. 404.856.7337

e. blb@rees.com

